A NOTE FROM THE DIRECTOR OF ARTISTIC TRAINING

I was first introduced to the show Almost, Maine when I saw a production of it my sophomore year of high school. I was young. I was hopeful. I was falling in love with the boy sitting next to me. He held my hand for the first time at this show. I have always been drawn to media that was a balance of humor and emotion, and this show is just the perfect mix. I think one of the most important things about this show is that there really is something for everyone. Every scene is catered to a different aspect of being in love: whether it's saying "I love you" for the first time, meeting someone new and instantly being captivated by them, falling in love with your best friend, or learning that the one you love has moved on. The show doesn't hide the messy aspects of love, and that's one of my favorite parts.

When I was selected at the Director of Artistic Training for Scotch'n'Soda for the 2017-2018 school year, this show was kind of already swirling around in the background of my head. Even though I had only ever seen the show once, I was really desperate to do another production of it. I thought that this show was perfect to give a bunch of new directors some experience, as none of the scenes relied on each other. The show could have up to 9 directors, each one directing their own scene. I thought that this was a great opportunity to really give people the full scope of the directing process, from auditions to character analysis to blocking.

Watching the show come together has truly been a surreal experience, and I could not be more proud of all the people that worked on this production and helped me put it on. Whether it's your first time, or fifth time watching the show, I hope you enjoy your journey to Almost, Maine.

– Michelle Wiedmann, Director of Artistic Training
